ABOUT KYUSHU

Mount Aso, Kumamoto

Kyushu is Japan's third largest island

Known as the “Land of Fires”, Kyushu is a mountainous island in the South of Japan famous for its active volcanoes and natural hot springs; all of which surround the region’s rich culture. With plenty of untouched nature and amazing food, it’s no wonder that Kyushu has become quite the popular destination in the recent years.

It can be overwhelming trying to narrow down places to visit in this large region. Hence, we’ve created this itinerary which focuses on Fukuoka, Nagasaki, and Kumamoto. These 3 are a few of the top destinations which are easily accessible and close to each other.

FUKUOKA

Known for historical temples, beaches, and shopping malls, Fukuoka is said to be the gateway to Kyushu. A great starting point for those who are new to Kyushu, it’s also the region’s largest city!

With AirAsia’s new route to Fukuoka, it’s fast becoming a popular destinations for fellow Malaysians as well.

NAGASAKI

Many are probably familiar with Nagasaki’s devastating history from World War II. However, don’t let the past overshadow the city’s charm.

It’s home to a theme park, beautiful hill observatory and other attractions aside from museums, monuments and memorials. There’s certainly more to the city than meets the eye!

KUMAMOTO

Located in the center of the Kyushu island, Kumamoto is surrounded by lush nature and a peaceful environment. As such, you can find an abundant of high-quality food from fruits, vegetables, beef and seafood.

From scenic views to amazing food, Kumamoto is a city that has plenty to offer.

DAY 2 FUKUOKA

3. Dinner at Hyotan Sushi

A local favourite, Hyotan Sushi is one of the must-try restaurants in Fukuoka. With two locations near the Tenjin Station, the difference the two is that one is a conveyor belt sushi and the other one isn't.

Both are excellent in terms of quality and also price. From gourmet sushi like abalone, sea urchin, and grilled eel to sashimi sets and sushi platters, the choice is endless. Of course, you gotta have their tuna - fattier cuts of chutoro or ootoro, and the regular maguro.

2. Explore Nagasaki Chinatown and grab lunch there

One of Japan's three Chinatowns, the streets here are vibrant with red decorations and Chinese shops. A great place to hunt for food, a must-try street food item is the Kakuni Manju (pork belly bun). Other dishes to look out for are Sara Udon (crispy noodles with seafood), Goma Dango (sesame balls), Champon, just to name a few.

Getting there:

Walk 10-min or take the Nagasaki Denki No.5 tram line to Shinchin Chinatown and walk 3-min.

Address: 10-13 Shinchimachi, Nagasaki, 850-0842, Japan

Opening Hours: Daily, 10am to 9pm

3. Nagasaki Peace Park and Atomic Bomb Museum

Located just a few minutes walk from each other, the Nagasaki Peace Park and Atomic Bomb Museum serve to commemorate the atomic bombing of Nagasaki on 9 August 1945.

The historic event which devastated a large part of the city and caused the death of 75,000 people, these spaces are now important memorials for Nagasaki.

At 11:02am (exact time when the atomic bomb detonated) each day, a melancholic song plays on the speakers around the park.

Fit two must-visit nature wonders of Kyushu in one day on this Kurokawa Onsen and Aso day tour! Begin the tour with a visit to the famous Kurokawa onsen village, home to a mind-boggling array of outdoor hot springs with different views, sizes, privacy and settings.

Feel your stress melt away as you soak yourself into the healing waters of the hot springs. What a way to start the morning!

Once you're all relaxed and calm, it's time to make your way to Aso to enjoy a stunning panoramic view of the active volcano. Alternatively, you can also opt for a special drive to Laputa Road where the caldera edge looks to be floating in a sea of clouds.

DAY 5 KUMAMOTO

2. Dinner at Tengaiten (ラーメン天外天)

If you were to ask where you can get the best ramen in Kumamoto, many would suggest going to Tengaiten. One of the city's most popular ramen joints, you can find 3 different options available - basic ramen, spicy ramen, and char siu ramen.

Known for their addictive combination of tonkotsu pork broth, chicken stock and thick noodles, it's exactly the kind of comfort food you'd want after a long day.

Tengaiten also has English menus available to ease the ordering process. Aside from the good food, it's also been said that the service is great and the staff are always cheerful!

Getting there:

Walk 2-min from Suidocho Station on the Kumamoto City Tram line.

DAY 6 KUMAMOTO

1. Marvel at Japan's national natural treasure on a Takachiho Gorge Day Tour

Trace the paths of the gods in one of the most beautiful scenic spots in Kyushu, when you join the Takachiho Gorge Day Tour. The Takachiho Gorge was formed from a natural phenomenon by the Aso volcanos when sudden cooling led to spectacular cliffs that rise between 80 to 100 meters above the river.

One of the best ways to view the gorge is by boat and come face-to-face with the 17-meter Manai Falls! Sacred and mythical locations can also be found around the gorge such as the 1,800-year-old Takachiho Shrine.

Meet up location: Higo Ozu Station

Pro-tip: For lunch at your own expense, you can choose from a variety of restaurants offering local Miyazaki specialties. You can find the famous summer dish - Nagashi somen. It's a unique dining experience where you catch the noodles flowing down the bamboo pipe with your chopsticks!

Tour itinerary:
