TEQUILA

A spirit made in Jalisco and select areas of Guanajuato, Michoacán, Nayarit, and Tamaulipas in Mexico, exclusively from Blue Weber Agave. The agave piñas are cooked in traditional ovens or modern autoclaves, then crushed to extract the juice, which is fermented and distilled twice in copper or stainless steel stills. Tequila is classified into Destilado de Agave, Blanco (both unaged), Reposado (aged 2-12 months), Añejo (aged 1-3 years), and Extra Añejo (aged over 3 years).

MEZCAL

A spirit primarily cultivated in Oaxaca and other Mexican states such as Durango, Guerrero, San Luis Potosí, and more. Mezcal is produced from a variety of agave species, also known as maguey, including Espadín, Tobilá, and many others. It is distilled from roasted agave hearts along with other parts of the plant like its leaves and stems, in stone-lined earthen pits or clay ovens, imparting a smoky flavour. The agave is then crushed by hand or machine mill, fermented in wooden vats, clay or stone pots, and distilled in clay or copper stills. Mezcal can be classified based on maguey, region of production, and the aging process such as Joven, Reposado and Añejo.
